LOYOLA BASKETBALLERS FACE STRONG U.S. TEAMS, HOCKEY TEAM AT LAVAL

The Loyola hockey team winds up their pre-Christmas schedule with a key road game and the basketball team plays against their strongest competition to date in two weekend contests.

Daigneault's basketball squad plays host to New Hampshire College at the Athletic Complex tonight, 8 o'clock then make the jaunt to Potsdam, New York tomorrow for an evening match against Potsdam State.

Also on tonight's card at Laval University in Quebec City, Dave Draper's hockey Warriors tackle the undefeated Red and Gold from Laval in a Coupe de Quebec game which may decide the Coupe de Quebec winner.

New Hampshire, which split a pair of games against last year's Warriors, plays the same brand of fast-breaking game as Loyola and tonight's contest should be a thriller before a packed house.

After the Warriors' strong showing in last weekend's U of Waterloo tournament Coach Daigneault is looking for a pair of victories against the U.S. competition.

Earl "Springboard" Lewis is finally come into his own and is living up to his potential. The Warriors forward, along with centre John McAuliffe were voted first team All-Stars in the Waterloo Tournament.
